Name

Writing Exercise #9: "Inventing Four Aspects of My Local Argument"

There's no need to type this journal entry; just record your ideas in pen or pencil below each question. If you need more room, use the back or another sheet of paper.

Situation: Write your situation statement here.

For the following questions, you don't need to write in complete sentences.

1. Contextual: What do you know about your audience (values, hobbies, fears, concerns, goals, attitudes toward topic, etc.)?

2. Goal-Directed: What do you hope to accomplish? Think in terms of "frames of mind," not just your ultimate goal.

3. Supported: stance?	What are your experiences? Your reasons? Benefits to your perspective,
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	: What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?
4. Multi-Sided argument? Stren	What are drawbacks to your position? What about weakness to your ngths on the "other side"?